296. Akbar (1556-1605 AD) - Gold Mohur struck to heavy standard, 'Kalima' / 'Chaharyari' type, Dar al-Saltanah Lahore mint, AH988, KM 112.2, 12.20 grams. Obv: Kalima in centre, surrounded by the names of the four Rashidun caliphs and their titles, calligraphically forming a diamond-shaped enclosure. Rev: full name of the emperor in centre with AH date; the invocation Khallada Allah Ta'ala Mulkahu above and mint-name below. Abu'l Fazl, in his treatise 'Ain-i Akbari', mentions that the gold coinage struck by Akbar operated on two standards: corresponding to 9-rupees and 10-rupees. The mohurs or Ashrafiis worth 10-rupees were evidently heavier than the 9-rupee mohurs, weighing close to the old 'Dinar' standard. The precise reasons for this variance is not known, but judging by the fact that the heavy mohurs are much rarer than the normal (9-rupee) mohurs, it is plausible that they were struck for special occasions. They appear first time in AH987 and 988 but examples struck in the Islamic Millennium of AH990 are also known. So far, they are known struck from the mints of Ahmadabad, Lahore, Fathpur, Ujjain and Urdu Zafar Qarin. Exceedingly Rare.

₹ 3000 - 3500

- 413. Nawabs of Surat – Silver ½ rupee in the name of Shah Alam II, RY 5(1/2/3?), 5.80 grams. The series with posthumous RYs of Shah Alam struck at Surat is intriguing. KM attributes these coins to 'French India' – however, the French had no interest in Surat after the takeover of the port city by the East India Company in 1800. Another suggestion is that these coins were struck unofficially by the Thakore of Bhaunagar, but good metal quality and a near-continuous run for several years make the suggestion of 'unofficial' copies implausible. It is more likely that they were struck by the Nawab from another mint in the city, and distinguished by the fact that they had a running RY as against British issues which had it frozen at 46.
